City of Junction City Notice

Junction City, Oregon – Among the many concerns that we all have for the impact of “Staying home to save lives”, is if our local businesses will be able to survive the obvious reduction of cash flows. Fostering a successful economy in Junction City is a paramount interest of the City Council. Finding resources to help ease some of the financial burden is in the best interest of us all.

Lane County has created the Small Business Emergency Loan Fund, which set aside a portion for communities outside of Eugene and Springfield. Small businesses in Junction City are encouraged immediately to make application for relief through Community Lending Works. www.communitylendingworks.com.

As we are looking further for more solutions, a possibility has presented itself that certain funds that have been earmarked for economic development in Junction City may be able to be used for this purpose. I have placed this issue onto the agenda of the next City Council meeting and am confident that we will be able to present our small businesses with the additional relief they will need to keep our economy strong once this crisis is over
